

Top 9 Memorial Day Weekend Getaways

Here at LeafFilter, we honor our servicemen and women year round. Many of our LeafFilter team members have served as military personnel, and we are thankful for their service. We also offer a year-round military discount on the LeafFilter gutter protection system to show our gratitude and support of our servicemen and women.

On Memorial Day, we remember those who have fallen in service of the United States. As a national “holiday,” many people associate Memorial Day with a day off work, a time for cookouts, or the “official start of summer.” That’s why we’ve created this list of the top 9 places to get away this Memorial Day weekend. But, as you plan your vacation (or staycation), don’t forget the true meaning of Memorial Day. Take a pause to remember the heroes who have fallen protecting our country.

7. New Hope, Pennsylvania

Cross the river, and just a short walk away from Lambertville, you’ll find the charming Pennsylvania town known as New Hope. If you want to be historic about it, you can venture just 15 minutes south and visit the Washington Crossing Park to cross the Delaware in the exact place President (then General) George Washington crossed during the War of Independence in 1776.

Once you get to New Hope, continue your historical quest by visiting the Aaron Burr House. Then, climb aboard the steam-powered train on the New Hope and Ivyland Railroad. Take a guided walk through the Bowman’s Hill Wildflower Preserve, where you’ll have the chance to see tons of different varieties of flowers. Stay at Porches on the Towpath Bed & Breakfast for a quiet and comfortable retreat.
